The UNIVERSITY of WEST ATTICA/Career, Liaison, Technology Transfer & Innovation Office, in collaboration with Athena40 is hosting a panel of female speakers, all professionals and very active in their field for, Equalizing opportunities for women entrepreneurs.

The outcomes of the event will be broadcasted during the 2nd Athena40 Global Conversation on Female Leadership. Taking place under the theme Making the Case on Female Leadership, the conversation will involve parallel discussions that will be centrally moderated from London by BBC World's Tim Willcox, who will connect live to 9 cities to get a sense of what progress has been made regarding women's empowerment, where the major challenges and opportunities for women lie, who are the real change makers globally, and what can be done to promote diversity and inclusivity.

Discussion will focus on the following questions:

1. Do our societies need more women leaders & why?
2. What progress has been achieved in the past years regards women in leadership in your country?
3. Where are the major challenges and opportunities?
4. Who are the real change-makers, can you think of leading women who are making or have made a difference- in your country?
5. What can be done to promote diversity, inclusivity and women in leading positions?
6. What does "Female Leadership" mean to you? Is it different to "Male"Leadership, and how?
